Every healthcare organization must address the issue of medical error or face the negative response of the public, the media, and regulatory bodies. This practical resource will provide you with a comprehensive blueprint for building and supporting a culture of patient safety. It includes contributions from experts in leading organizations including the renowned Institute for Healthcare Improvement.

About the Author Michael Leonard, M.D., is physician leader of patient safety at Kaiser Permanente in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and works with the Institute for Healthcare Improvement. Allan Frankel, M.D., is director of patient safety at Partners Healthcare in Boston. He also works with the Institute for Healthcare Improvement and the Massachusetts Coalition for the Prevention of Medical Error. Terri Simmonds, R.N., CPHQ, is a director at the Institute for Healthcare Improvement in Boston. She also works with the Massachusetts Coalition for the Prevention of Medical Error.
