Evaluation and management (E/M) coding has been, and will continue to be, a hot area for government, payer, and compliance scrutiny. In fact, according to audit results published in the 2014 report "Improper Payments for Evaluation and Management Services Cost Medicare Billions in 2010," 55 percent of E/M claims were incorrectly coded during 2010, resulting in $6.7 billion in improper Medicare payments. To steer clear of trouble, you have to know the ins and outs of E/M coding and the pitfalls to avoid so you don't over- or under-code your provider's services. Chances are good that your payer will review any and all E/M claims your practice submits. Avoid 5 common E/M errors with these expert tips. Practice the Marshfield system for figuring MDM. Differentiate 99213, 99214 to get the pay that you deserve. Meet the challenge of more than one problem per day. Implement the updated 99466-99467 reporting guidelines. Improve your prolonged service coding by reviewing 3 coding examples. Get to know 2015's chronic care management code changes. Watch for 0-day global periods on all codes, CMS says. 3 scenarios help refine your smoking cessation coding. Determine when and what to charge with a DOA. Rely on 99462 for subsequent care of newborn. Think again when reporting same date admission and 99217. Prepare for denial when 2 physicians claim consult on same day. And much more! Get over 250 pages of E/M coding guidance, plus - new for 2015 - you get level-of-service audit forms for both 1995 and 1997 guidelines and full-page 1997 specialty-specific exam calculation worksheets! Pull these pages out to tack up on your wall and make coding your E/M encounters quick and easy.
