

(Read ebook) Feminist Ethics and Social Policy: Towards a New Global Political Economy of Care

Feminist Ethics and Social Policy: Towards a New Global Political Economy of Care

From UBC Press

*ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

Download

Read Online

#3262755 in Books 2012-01-24 2012-01-01 Original language: English PDF # 1 8.90 x .60 x 5.90l, .80 #File Name: 077482106X244 pages | File size: 62.Mb

From UBC Press : Feminist Ethics and Social Policy: Towards a New Global Political Economy of Care before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Feminist Ethics and Social Policy: Towards a New Global Political Economy of Care:

As national borders become more permeable, women are increasingly traveling from poor to rich countries to take jobs as care workers. The struggle to maintain a healthy work/care balance in Western nations is creating a care deficit in the developing world. This book links ethics to the social politics of care by examining the implications of the feminization of migrant labor and the shortcomings of social policy. From Canada to Sweden and from Korea to Japan, renowned and emerging scholars reveal that a truly feminist ethics of care must be grounded in the concrete lives of real people working in transnational webs of social relations.

This is a wonderful book that makes a strong contribution to the study of global issues. Combining the theory on the ethics of care with recent findings on the transnationalization and commodification of care work, it looks particularly at the migration of care workers from poor countries of the global South to rich ones in the global North. - Virginia Held, author of The Ethics of Care: Personal, Political, and Global An outstanding volume. A good deal of literature explores the topic of care, but it has been difficult to bridge a feminist ethics of care with social policy. This timely book takes on the challenge and does so deftly and with depth. - Kate Bezanson, author of Gender, the State, and Social Reproduction: Household Insecurity in Neo-liberal Times "An outstanding volume. A good deal of literature explores the topic of care, but it has been difficult to bridge a feminist ethics of care with social policy. This timely book takes on the challenge and does so deftly and with depth." Kate Bezanson, author of Gender, the State, and Social Reproduction: Household Insecurity in Neo-liberal Times "This is a wonderful book that makes a strong contribution to the study of global issues. Combining the theory on the ethics of care with recent findings on the transnationalization and commodification of care work, it looks particularly at the migration of care workers from poor countries of the global South to rich ones in the global North." Virginia Held, author of The Ethics of Care: Personal, Political, and Global From the Inside Flap As national borders become more permeable, women are increasingly travelling from poor to rich countries to take up jobs as care workers. The struggle to maintain a healthy work/care balance in Western nations is creating a care deficit in the developing world. This volume links ethics to the social politics of care by examining the implications of the feminization of migrant labour and the shortcomings of social policy. From Canada to Sweden and from Korea to Japan, renowned and emerging scholars reveal that a truly feminist ethics of care must be grounded in the concrete lives of real people working in transnational webs of social relations.